ANNAPOLIS COUPLE LAUNCHES IMPROV COMEDY TROUPE

Annapolis, MD, June 4, 2012 — A married couple from Annapolis has started an improvisational comedy troupe. The troupe includes nine local actors who attended auditions in April and May. The troupe, Free Range Improv, is currently searching for local venues in which to perform, and hopes to debut this summer.

Free Range Improv troupe members include: Dann Alagna (founder), Thomas Beheler, Amy Chase, Rosalind Fraser, Justin Puig, Pat Reynolds, Tom Ryan, Debbie Samek, and Liza Warder.

Dann and Samantha (Sam) Alagna recently relocated to Annapolis from Florida. "After years of moving around regularly for business, we fell in love with Annapolis, and decided to settle here. Dann changed careers in order to keep us here, and we have become Annapolitans through-and-through," said Sam. "We have declared Annapolis our home, and we are so excited about what Free Range Improv can offer to our area."

The couple met as members of an improv troupe in college, and in the years since, has started two other improv troupes in Florida. Free Range Improv is their third improv venture. "We were moving around so much that we weren't able to fully realize our previous troupes. With what we learned in those experiences, and the wealth of professional knowledge that we've gained over the years, we are ecstatic about the potential for this new troupe," said Dann. "This area has some really amazing talent, and we were so fortunate to be able to assemble this amazing cast."

"We spend a lot of time downtown Annapolis. We love it, and we think Free Range will fit in perfectly. Our dream for Free Range Improv is to offer our community live, affordable, alternative comedy entertainment," said Sam. "We are confident that Annapolis will embrace it."
